2. Sen. Joe Clark (D., Pa.) came to lunch here as the guest of Mr. Dulles and General Cabell. Others present were: Messrs. Helms, White, [] Lloyd, Kirkpatrick and Paul. During and after the luncheon, the Senator was briefed as to the mechanics of the U. S. intelligence operation, and as to the organizational structure of CIA. The Senator was particularly interested in the process by which various intelligence reports from all over the government are co-ordinated and made a part of a final report which goes to the President. During the course of the briefing on the CIA organization, the Senator was informed of the connection between this Agency and Radio Free Europe. There was also some discussion of the Mansfield Resolution, and the Senator was given the various arguments which had been advanced pro and con the Resolution. The Senator also was briefed thoroughly on the organization of the IAC and its subordinate committees, and was informed of the membership and work of the President's Board of Consultants. He was given general information as to the number of CIA employees at home and in the field. The Senator was informed as to the classified nature of much of what had been discussed with him. (CC - DP/S)

3. The Director, accompanied by Mr. Paul, visited Senator Hayden in his office to discuss general Agency problems. After a brief exchange of views on the world situation, the Director mentioned the fact that some 17 Resolutions for a Joint Committee had thus far been introduced in the House this Session. The Senator said he had not heard of any intention on the part of Mike Mansfield to reintroduce his Resolution. The last time he had talked to Mike, which was during the last Session, Mike indicated he was licked and he knew it. He said he would check again with Senator Mansfield, however, to see if he has had a change of heart, and he undertook to let us know the results. The Director discussed the building problem, and the fact that it looked as though we were going to be some $10 million short of funds to construct a building adequate to house all our personnel. He emphasized that he was not making any formal request at this time, but indicated that he might want to talk to the Senator and his Committee later about this problem. Senator Hayden remarked that it was very difficult to predict just how the Congress would react at any given time to a request for funds for construction purposes. He described the difficulties encountered in getting an appropriation for the new Senate Office Building. In balance, while not discouraging the idea of a supplemental request, the Senator seemed to me to be urging some caution on our part in raising the issue. There was a general brief discussion on our budget. The Director indicated that we were planning a regular operating budget of roughly the same size during FY/58 as during FY/57. He described new areas of concentration on our effort, but no budget details were discussed. The Director also explained his actions on executive pay increases, and the Senator stated no objection to his action. The Director indicated that we were willing to appear at any time before the Appropriations Committee, and the Senator indicated they would get in touch with us, but probably not until after the House had acted on the appropriation request for the Defense Department. 4. Senator Barry Goldwater (R., Ariz.) came down for a briefing on the Hungarian situation. The Senator was interested in this briefing because he is planning to go to Austria within the next week or so to "see for himself" just how the refugee program is being conducted. He will be traveling more or less incognito, as a member of an Air Force crew. (He is a Colonel in the Air Force Reserve). General Cabell, Messrs. [redacted] conducted the major part of the briefing. The Director, accompanied by Mr. Paul, joined the group for a few minutes at the end. After the meeting, the Senator asked me how many people we had in Washington, and I told him around [redacted] I added that this was a classified figure, and the Senator said he would treat it accordingly. (cc DD/S, Mr. Angleton).
